MR. OTTO COOK, dying, leaves $10,000 to his wife and $25,000 to be spent on prayers for his soul.

If they ever laugh in Heaven, and if Otto Cook ever gets there, he ought to hear unusually loud laughter on his arrival.

Undoubtedly the religious organization inheriting the $35,000 will remedy the injustice in that kind of will.

It is also to be hoped that Divine Providence will find a way to impress upon Otto Cook the fact that he exaggerated considerably the importance of his own little soul. For that kind of soul, 10 cents should be enough.

THE PRESIDENT calls upon all to give thanks. He mentions the Japanese earthquake and says: "We are better able to appreciate our blessings when we remember the privations that others suffered." That undoubtedly is true. Our Puritan ancestors believed that in Heaven the blessed were made much happier by seeing what had befallen to their friends and relatives down below.

THANKSGIVING DAY will come this year on the eighth of November. You may give thanks, doubly, if we have the good luck to stay out of that European conference and the unforeseen complications it may lead to.

DR. NIMOX, an expert, says drugs cost this nation every year a loss of $1,250,000,000. That sum represents the value of drugs used and the waste of energy and services of drug victims.

All hungry people in the world could be fed and clothed, all public improvements that the world needs could be paid for with the waste caused by drugs, alcohol and crime. If civilized nations would fight these evils, instead of fighting each other, progress would be more rapid.

A QUEEN, an exhibition in New York, could be visited by other queens, especially "society queens."

The queen exhibited is a queen bee, in a little palace of polished glass, surrounded by attendants constantly caring for her.

That queen is a model for all others. She marries only once, never gets divorced. In fact, after the original, and very short honeymoon trip, which is a journey straight up in the air, she never sees her husband again, and for two good reasons: First, she doesn't want to see him; second, he is dead.

THE QUEEN obeys the rules of her court, much to the disgust of the working bees, by whom she was made a queen, through a slight interference and change in diet, when she was very young.

As for royal ancestry, that queen goes back in a straight line through thousands of centuries. There were queens in her family when the ancestors of the greatest human aristocrats were climbing timidly down from the trees to take a short, quick run to another tree.

IN DETROIT, yesterday, 150 telephone operators called up 70,000 subscribers and asked, "Good morning, have you voted yet?" A new, interesting, election day idea. The radio could do it even more widely.

But it's a bad sign that citizens should need to be reminded to vote. You don't have to remind them of their coffee and rolls, or their golf game.

VIRGINIA KATHERINE DODGE

The business world has claimed another daughter of the Four Hundred—this time in millinery.

Miss Virginia Katherine Dodge, twenty-three-year-old Radcliffe College senior, has thus given expression to her fancy, the result of which has brought her many heads of her college mates to fit with smart, dashing, trim, sport and dress chaprains.

In a little shop in the Broadway Building, Boston street, the student, when she is not at classes or at study, creates and reproduces hats with unobtrusive Parisian atmosphere. Glad and contented when at this work, "mamma" as she is known by her friends, sketches and sketches, designs and adds to her models.

"Brought out in Paris in 1921 by the Countess D'Orlando, Miss Dodge will return to the fashion center of the world to further her knowledge and technique of Parisian design when she receives her degree from Radcliffe in June. Count Dodge, who is a member of the faculty at the University of California, where she studied during the year of her detention in France, is a "coming out" fete were such of the French nobility as the Duchess de Chicago, Nov. 7.—Passengers on trains speeding across the country within the next future may pick up a phone and telephone back about the things they forgot. Automatic train control by radio will be installed on at least one division of forty-first-class roads of the country by 1925. It was announced at the opening session of the fourteenth annual convention.

"Automatic train control system in addition to applying automatic brakes to engines and train equipment, also provides a double check on indications now being given through automatic signal territory, such as defective relays, open switches and blocks now being occupied," one engineer stated.

VALLEY OF KINGS TO HAVE PHONE SERVICE

Luxor, Egypt, Nov. 7.—Modernization of the remote Valley of the Kings is steadily progressing. The Egyptian government has just been the installation of a telephone line between this city and the Valley. A year ago the district wherein the rulers of ancient Egypt were buried was almost an inaccessible desert. Now it was in the time of the Pharaohs, but now a motor road runs through the Valley.

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 7.—Exhausted and verging on collapse, Henry J. Reynolds, former New England baseball star, who disappeared two days before his wedding was to take place, returned to his home at No. 35 East Pearl street.

Reynolds disappeared on October 27. On October 28, he was to have married Miss Alice McBermet, No. 112 Arlington street, Manchester, at St. Paul's Cathedral, Manchester. His mother returned to say that he was near collapse and that he would not be able to discuss his case, as the Queen likes to keep an eye on the speed.

22 DIE, 60 HURT, IN POISH RIOTS AND BOMBINGS

Warsaw, Nov. 7 (AP).—Twenty-two persons have been killed and three scores wounded in riots and bombings growing out of the strike of the railway workers.

The disorders, occurred despite the agreement of the Socialists to call off the strike in return for the government's promise to withdraw the military.

In a crowd a crowd surrounded and dispersed a company of infantry. The men were rescued by a cavalry charge, in which twenty persons were killed. Most of the dead were soldiers.

Crackdown has been the scene of Communist propaganda of a most active sort, directed, according to the government, by outside leaders.

A bomb exploded in Warsaw in the headquarters of the Socialists, killing the porter and wounding the janitor.

A Socialist leader was killed in Bydgoszcz. Troops are policing the cities.

The apparent settlement of the strike is attributed to the failure of the Socialists and Communists to succeed in inciting sufficient disorder and economic disturbances throughout the country to make a fall of the great effective.

GALLAGHER-SHEAN DECIDE TO OBEY

New York, Nov. 7.—Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean, as a result of the ruling handed down last week by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, have withdrawn from the cast of the show, now at the Forest Theatre in Philadelphia.

The latest court decision hands the two comedians over to the Shuberts. Through Tobias Krejtor, their attorney, the two actors have applied for a stay of execution pending an appeal to the highest New York court.

Meantime, they communicated by long-distance telephone with Mr. Krejtor, who advised them to withdraw from "The Follies" until their status was finally set.

"ABOLISH MARRIAGE," SAYS WOMAN ENVOY

London, Nov. 7 (By Universal Service).—"It is impossible for human love to last," is the opinion of Alexandra Kollontai, chief of the Soviet delegation to Norway, quoted in an interview in Politiken. She also declared that marriage ought to be abolished.

"Marriage would be better ordered, if carried out as it now is with the higher order of animals," she said. "Housekeeping is relentless tyranny. Why should we be chained to the kitchen? The time has come when we must surrender the despotism of wife and man."

BRITAIN YIELDS TO FRENCH PROPOSAL

Paris, Nov. 7 (AP).—Prospects for an agreement between France and Great Britain on the text of the invitation to the United States to join the conference of experts for examination of the reparations question was regarded in diplomatic and French official circles today as brighter than yesterday.

The improved situation was said to be due to the tendency of the British Government to accept in attenuated form Premier Poincare's reservation restricting the delivery of Germany's capacity to pay to the "present."

M. Poincare, it is stated, has already declared he was willing to give a rather elastic interpretation to this reservation, permitting it to cover a period of perhaps two years.

The Reparation Commission has decided to comply immediately with the German request for a hearing on the reparations question as proposed in the Berlin government's note of October 14, if the several governments, including the United States, are unable to agree regarding the setting up of the advisory investigating committee.

GIRLS SELLING LIQUOR HIDE STOCK WELL

Girl bootleggers—and there are many of them—carry their wares where dry agents have a hard time finding them, according to Mrs. Mary McKinnon, No. 23 Sharon street, who has just finished her season's work as a special officer of the Metropolitan police district.

"The First National Bank" is a favorite place for the girl bootlegger to carry her wares. Others conceal liquor in their handbags, while others carry large supplies in the front of their dresses, Mrs. McKinnon explained.

"Sometimes a girl won't carry any liquor with her," she said, "but will take an order from a man she picks up on the street, and will arrange to deliver the liquor later."

"I myself have arrested but two girls for bootlegging. My patrol was on the Esplanade. I am informed, however, that the girl bootlegger is found most frequently on the Common at night, and that most of her business is with sailors."

LEAKY GAS TUBING KILLS MAN IN BATH

New York, Nov. 7.—Henry H. Van Emden, president of the Pitt News Company of Pittsburgh and an official of the X-ray Medical Company, was found dead in a bathtub in his Fifth floor apartment, the room was filled with gas from a leaking hot-water radiator.

Death was accidental, Mr. Van Emden had planned to sail today for Holland to visit his wife and daughter, the latter an opera singer. Investigation showed Mr. Van Emden had leaned from his tub and turned off the gas at the stove, but that it still flowed from the wall jet and leaked through the tubing.

CHILD PRODIGY, 10. AD ADVISES MOTHERS

ELIZABETH BENSON

The cure-all for misadventures between children and their parents was given as "interests outside the home," for mothers, by Elizabeth Benson, ten-year-old child prodigy. She was speaking before the Business and Professional Women's League in New York on "Why a Business Woman Makes the Best Mother." Little Miss Benson, who holds the world's record for child mentality, with intelligence quotient under the Binet-Simon tests of 214, offered herself as the best proof of the efficacy of a business or professional career as an aid to intelligent motherhood. Her mother is Anne Austin, writer and magazine editor.

GIRL RAFFLES NEW BEDFORD VERY BUSY IN SOMERVILLE GIRL GIVEN JAIL TERM

Many recent thefts of articles of feminine attire in Somerville have led the police to start a search for a girl raffie, believed to be operating in that city.

The girl raffie, apparently, frequents dance halls and also operates at back yard clothes lines.

The most recent thefts reported to the police and attributed to the girl raffie were those of two fur coats during a dance in Hobbs' Auditorium, West Somerville, and a ladies' gray suit from a clothes line in the back yard at No. 95 Kiddie avenue, West Somerville.

Helen Paschal of No. 104 Winchester street, Bedford, reported that her astrakhan coat with fur collar, valued at $100 was stolen at the dance in Hobbs' Auditorium. At the same dance, Ruth Anderson of No. 14 Orchard street, Bedford, told that she lost a blue bolivia coat with gray collar, valued at $45.

Mrs. J. E. Hansen of No. 35 Kiddie avenue, West Somerville, also reported that a gray suit, valued at $35, was stolen from the clothes line in her back yard.

The police have under surveillance several girls.

CURIOUS BOY BADLY BURNED BY LIVE WIRE

Beverly, Nov. 7.—Tony Connell, seven years old, was curious to know what made the electric lights shine brightly in the street and started to investigate. Climbing a pole near his home on Chatham street, he grasped a live wire carrying a 1,600 volt load. Like the man who got the lead by the tail, he held on, but he couldn't let it go. His screams attracted neighbors, who telephoned to the police. Before the emergency truck arrived, Tony's father climbed the pole, grabbed the boy by the feet and jerked him free from the wires. Tony's hands were severely burned, but he was otherwise unharmed.

MILLIONAIRE BARBER SHOP ROW
Cambridge Landlord Defends
Carpenter Accused by Un-welcomed Tenant

Elmer H. Bright, millionaire State street broker, and president of the Central Trust Company of Cambridge, is the central figure in a barber shop row which is being enacted in Suffolk County Equity Court, East Cambridge District Court, and in the shop itself in Central square, Cambridge.

The banker appeared in Third Middlesex District Court in defense of his carpenter, David A. Saunders, of Cambridge, who was cited for trespass by George W. Dunlevy, owner of a chain of barber-shops, including the one in Central square, in a building owned by Bright.

Dunlevy says he has a temporary injunction restraining Bright from putting him out of the place he has occupied for fourteen years, and also preventing carpenters from making alterations for Bright's new tenant.

ORDERED BARBER OUT.
His manager, Malcolm Daniels, engaged in a hand-to-hand tussle with Saunders when Saunders appeared to tear down a partition erected by Dunlevy. When Bright came to Saunders' aid, Daniels ordered five policemen, but the complaint was lodged by Dunlevy against Bright's employee.

Judge Arthur R. Stone denied the complaint because he did not wish to interfere with equity court proceedings. Dunlevy has applied for a permanent injunction. The principal met as they left court.

"You get your furniture out of that shop," said Bright.

"Try to make me," retorted the barber shop man.

"I'm going right after a constable," said Bright.

FORMER JUDGE JABEZ FOX IS DEAD AT 73

Judge Jabez Fox, former justice of the Superior Court, died suddenly at the Brunswick Hotel of enlargement of the heart.

Judge Fox was appointed to the bench in 1890. He resigned in 1921, but has since been drawn for service.

He was born in Taunton on April 16, 1850. He received the degree of A.B. from Harvard in 1871, and the degree of LL.B. from Harvard Law School in 1873.

He was admitted to Suffolk bar in 1875, and practiced for four years with Charles Allen, former Attorney General. In 1879 he married Susan E. Thayer of Cambridge.

WAR VETERAN DROPS GUN, SHOOTS SELF

South Braintree, Nov. 7.—While hunting in woods near his home, Walter M. Blanchard discharged both barrels of his shotgun into his left foot.

Blanchard received a wound in his side during the World War which he said causes him excruciating pain. He was seized with one of these attacks, dropping his gun.

PLANS NEW ACTION

The banker declared that Judge Waite in Equity Court told him Dunlevy has no legal right in the building, and that he began alterations as a result of this information. Bright is the biggest land-owner in the Central square district.

Dunlevy, who has a shop in Harvard square and numbers thousands of Harvard students among his friends, is contemplating new court action against Bright himself if the latter attempts to halt his business today.

CARS ROSE OF MCCALL
Funeral Services for Governor Samuel W. McCall

Funeral services for Governor Samuel W. McCall were held today in the Church of the Epiphany in Winchester, where the deceased worshipped for many years. The nation, the State, several municipalities and lesser bodies joined in making the service a fitting memorial to the dead statesman.

The service was read by Rev. John W. Miller, D. D., the Governor's long time friend, assisted by Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., rector of Epiphany.

By request of the citizens of Winchester the body lay in state in the church from 11.30 a. m. to 1.45 p. m., while hundreds of neighbors and friends filed past the bier. During the hour of the funeral all business was closed in Winchester and the town's bells tolled the passing of the town's first citizen.

All cars of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway stopped for one minute at 2.45 p. m., the hour when the funeral cortege left the church for Woodmont Cemetery, where the body was laid at rest.

The State was represented at the funeral by Governor Channing H. C. Carter and members of the City Council. The State Senate and House of Representatives were represented by Hon. Charles C. Warren, Senator from Arlington; Representative Richard D. Crockett and Lewis H. Peters of Bedford, and Joseph R. Sutton of Lawrence.

He was painfully destroyed at Belmont Park by order of Mrs. J. A. Clark, formerly Miss Helen Hickock.

NEW MOVE TO BALK ADVANCE

Communities Combine in 38 Municipalities to Balk Proposed Increases

Organized opposition to the proposed 20 per cent. increase in commutation rates on New England railroads will be presented to the Public Utilities Commission next Wednesday at the State House.

Representatives of thirty-eight Massachusetts municipalities met at the close of the last session which completed the railroads' side of the case and named Jean P. Nickerson of Roslindale secretary of the Commuters Committee of Metropolitan Boston.

Mr. Nickerson announced that he would call a meeting for Thursday afternoon in the offices of the Public Utilities Commission to present the commuters' case. No meeting was set out today to every city and town in the Commonwealth, urging city councilors, Mayors and council members to attend Thursday's meeting.

Many city councilors have already started a study of the great mass of statistics offered by the railroads in an effort to convince the commission that the new rate is necessary. It is thought by many of the protesting communities that these figures can be refuted.

MEDFORD HAS NEWTON TO HURDLE

Medford High's football team has one other high hurdle to clear before the championship sun shows on the horizon. Newton on Saturday is a foe worthy of consideration.

HARVARD HAS LAST HARD PRACTICE FOR TIGER TUSSLE

Bob Fisher gave his Harvard football team their last hard practice this afternoon, and then packed up his team and prepared to take it to Princeton tomorrow.

The Crimson, strange though it may seem, will invade the jungle in a fairly optimistic mood. Harvard hasn't a thing to be proud about this fall, and perhaps on that account figures that all the joy and glory is just out in front.

At all events, the invasion will take place with no such gloomy surroundings as might be expected. The Crimson is, at least, as good.

This big weekend game, first of the large Three collisions, undoubtedly will be one of the surprises. One eleven, or the other, is over-much to flash into real form. The boys at Harvard figure it will be their outfit. Down in Ithaca they have things done exactly the other way.

All of which provides the ingredients of a hectic struggle, especially when you consider that both squads carry more fight and desire into this particular squabble than into any other. The Crimson hasn't triumphed over the Orange and Black for seven long years, or something like that, and a victory Saturday will take most of the sting out of what is very likely to happen when the Yale steam roller is encountered.

The Fisher plan of campaign, we imagine, will include a bunch of "old-fashioned football. Harvard, with a sluggish backfield, must depend on brute force more than on speed and strategy. Cohen and Hammond undoubtedly will start in the backfield, with the other assignment a couple of Jenkins, Cheek and Lockwood.

Cheek and Lockwood are the line smashing type, and one of them may be on the job at a 13 opening whistle, with the flow Jenkins lead in reserve. Joe McDermott, who made a great hit with the coaches Saturday, will call the signals, and down in their hearts the boys who run things across the Champs expect great things of the diminutive youth. He can carry a football through a broken field, and into small line openings better than anybody who

NEW YORK UNIV. WINS FROM FORDHAM

New York, Nov. 7 (University)—New York University defeated Fordham University before a crowd of 8,000, 20 to 6, at the Yankee Stadium. Tom Thorpe's eleven was clearly superior on the offensive, but the Varsity team was prevented from scoring in the final quarter. Prevented from scoring in the final quarter, the first half of New York's half from mid-field to the Fordham line in the second period, and Fred Howley kicked a perfect field goal from a placement on the 15-yard line. He duplicated that feat in the third period.

Right at the start of the final period, "Nagge" broke through, blocked a punt and the ball rolled over the goal line, where "Nagge" dropped it on for the first touchdown. Howley kicked the goal for the point after touchdown.

Harvard Demands a Victory Over Princeton

More than 1,000 Harvard students jammed the living room of the Harvard Union and cheered themselves hoarse in a mammoth mass meeting held as a preliminary send-off to the coaches and team before their trip to Princeton.

Parlay of $2 Would Have Cleaned Up France

Park, Nov. 7.—A $2 parlay bet—roughly $9 francs—on the six winners at the Matignon Lottery race track, Paris, had won $4,735,000,000 francs. The entire banknote circulation of France is below forty billion.

The six winners averaged $50 to 1. The odds on the horse race on the first race were 125 to 1, on the second 15 to 1, the third 28 to 1 and the fourth, fifth and sixth races 20 to 1.

Harvard Names the Backfield for Princeton

Just now the Harvard backfield that will start against Princeton will be McGlone, quarterback; Cheek and Cohen, halfbacks, and Hammond, fullback.

Hammond will be given preference over Jenkins because of his superior kicking ability, but should Hammond's feet fail to come through then Jenkins will make an early start in the game.

Great attention was paid to dropkicking in practice yesterday. Extensive drop kicking always has figured in Harvard-Princeton games, and several times has decided the swing of the pendulum.

Pfaffman, Akers, McGlone and Mosley took turns with the ball. The honors went to Pfaffman.

Cornell Victory Was Twenty-First. New York, Nov. 7.—Cornell, who meets Columbia at the Polo Grounds on Saturday, has completed one of the greatest records in football history.

The Ithaca's 22 to 0 victory over Dartmouth last week was the twenty-first consecutive triumph and the twenty-seventh that it has won out of twenty-nine played in the regime of Glen Rose.

Cornell's last defeat was on Thanksgiving Day, 1925, when Pennsylvania won, 21 to 0. In the three previous seasons that Dobbie has been at Ithaca his teams have scored 1,181 points to their opponents' 147.

Nate Sharr, Eddie Cook, "Moon" Reed and Jack Wilson are the other quartet of linemen who occupied the Harvard backfield without injury. These are the only four sure to take part in the game with the Brunswick eleven.

In the backfield Turf has the best quartet since "Gillie" Westcott and Jimmy McCain made history at Turf.

Captain Tyler Sent to the Sidelines

The Jinx that has troubled Captain "Wood" Tyler of Turf has caught him again. After he was examined by the physician, he was ordered to return to the sidelines.

The Jumbo leader was put out of the game early in the Turf defense. In the season with an injured knee. In the Wesleyan game, he suffered another injury.

He refused to let the Turf line in the Harvard game last week and paraded both hands until he was injured again. Tyler is not expected to appear against Bowdoin. His withdrawal will leave a wide gap in the Turf defense.

No Pitt, who took Tyler's place, is also out with a bad wrist. Keith Kilham is likely to start in place of Tyler. He is a husky lad who held down a variety line for two years ago, and has plenty of football experience.

Hennessy, the other tackle, who has been out two weeks with a bad ankle, will be back in his old position. Line Coach Walter Cleary is worried over "Chad" Donahue's injury. He played part of the Harvard game and then retired in favor of Schuster.

Chandonnet will be ready for Bowdoin. Nate Sharr, Eddie Cook, "Moon" Reed and Jack Wilson are the other quartet of linemen who occupied the Harvard backfield without injury.

From present indications, several of the substitutes who have taken the place of the injured players will play safe all week. The scrimmages have been informal, in order that there may be no chances of any further injuries.

With the Ivy Crusade game fast looming on the horizon, the Eagle will court no more chances of disability.

FOUR OF EAGLE REGULARS OFF SICK LIST

The sun has at last come from behind the cloud of injuries that has dogged the Boston College eleven for the past few weeks. Four regulars, Cronin, Elmer, Blawie and McManus have returned to practice.

McManus and Cronin have suffered from last year's injuries, and although McManus is fit for battle again, it is improbable that Cavanaugh will expose Cronin to danger for at least another week.

Blawie, one of the guards who was hurt in the Marquette game, is also in shape, and with him and McManus available, Jack Donahue, the freebody lad who has played guard with return to the tackle berth.

Then will develop the real tackle back play used so successfully three years past. The reason for Donahue's return to tackle is from Turf. He was banged up in the Georgetown game, and his ankles still pain him. He has been put on a light diet of practice.

Sherry also is ready for action again, as a special helmet has been designed to protect his split eye. Coach Cavanaugh has been playing safe all week. The scrimmages have been informal, in order that there may be no chances of any further injuries.

"Miss Kevins Had an Almost Perfect Oval Face, a Straight, Narrow Nose, Level Eyes and a Well-Molded Forehead."

When the Medical Expert Analyzes Beauty

He Challenges the Recent Judgment of a Jury of Illustrators, and Asserts That Since the Days of Botticelli's "Consumptive" Venus Artists Have Painted Unbeautiful Types

The Diagram Superimposed on the Figure of Miss Kevins Shows How the Approximate Normal Female Proportions are Outlined by Dr. Merkel, Celebrated Anatomist.

A Beauty's Measurements
Height—5 feet 8 inches to 5 feet 7 inches
Weight—125 to 135 pounds
Waist—24 to 27 inches
Bust—34 to 36 inches
Head—7½ times the height of the hand should equal the height of the body. The Greek standard is 8 times.
Neck—The neck should equal the calf of the leg in girth.
Arms—The end of the middle finger should extend half way between the hip and knee joints.

By Dr. Robert Bachmann

THE basis of all beauty as far as it applies to the human face and figure is health. If this statement is true then the importance of the doctor in the domain of art must be conceded at once. But is it true? Let us see.

Human beauty, or, to be more definite, female beauty may be divided into beauty of face and beauty of figure.

Beauty of face depends upon regularity, form and symmetry of features plus color effect and charm of expression.

Beauty of figure depends upon form, symmetry and proportion, plus grace of movement. One additional factor influences both face and figure—texture of skin. No woman can be beautiful with pimples on her back.

Now what determines the above factors of beauty? Health. The moment disease or even deviation from the normal, not severe enough to be called disease, exists in the body its beauty is marred. Now the artist does not know a great deal about diseases, but he should be able to observe pathological results. For instance, a slight bowing forward of the chin, often seen in negroes, is known to doctors as the saber blade deformity of rickets. An artist should be able to detect this as well as a doctor but unless the curve is quite pronounced he misses it completely. Some artists see it, but do not care. They reproduce it just the same. A doctor is trained to look for it. He sees it at once. Look at the drawings of Da Maurier. His females were giants—all out of proportion. He liked them, thought they were beautiful. A doctor would suspect something amiss with their women are beautiful or not as long as they are types and paintable. Zorn's females are scarcely examples of female pulchritude but they are types, and the manner in which this truly great artist painted them revealed him determines an artist's greatness. In fact, some artists apparently do not concern themselves very much whether their women are beautiful or not as long as they are types and paintable. Zorn's females are scarcely examples of female pulchritude but they are types, and the manner in which this truly great artist painted them revealed him without dispute as the possessor of rare genius. The Salambo statue of Paul Breton, on the other hand, is a truly remarkable portrayal of a beautifully formed woman. Salambo radiates health.

Some of our modern artists and illustrators such as Gibson, Christy, Fisher, Phillips, Here, etc., are gifted with an inherent feeling for female beauty which makes them keen judges of woman's loveliness. But I believe that were any one of these gentlemen engaged in the banking business, for instance, he still would have been able to differentiate accurately between women of various degrees of beauty.

But even among modern illustrators there is a tendency to idealize certain distinct but unbeautiful types. A glance at any of the magazine covers and a turning over of their pages will show what I mean.

At a recent beauty contest where pretty girls from all parts of the United States were entered, Ferny Stanislaw, the well-known illustrator, and one of the judges, declared an entry from a small Pennsylvania town to be one of the most striking girls he had seen. I should explain that this was not in the final award but during one of the early contests. The doctor's opinion of this young lady was that she had small and too deeply placed eyes, narrow orbits, high cheek bones, too long an upper lip, and lines running down from the also of her nose. The latter gave her an expression of asthenia which was rather to the point as her complexion indicated anemia. Still it must be admitted that she was a type and "chacun a son gout," as the French put it,

The Figure at Right Shows Symmetrical Development, But the One at the Left, According to the Doctor, "Has the Swinging 'Hip' Gait—so Indicative of Bowled Legs. The Artists Did Not See This Until She Appeared in a Bathing Suit."

Miss Katherine Campbell, Chosen by a Jury of Artists as the Most Beautiful Bathing Girl in America.

Miss Ethel's Kevins, of Brooklyn, as Paul Breton's Salambo. The Salambo Statue Says the Doctor, "Is a Truly Remarkable Portrayal of a Beautifully Formed Woman. Salambo Radiates Health."

Among other defects among the entries, which a doctor would have noted and which quite probably went unnoticed by the artists, were a number of deviated nasal septa as shown by asymmetry of nose. A contestant favorably commented upon by Mr. Dean Cornwall, one of our most brilliant magazine artists, would have been ruled out for falling arches. Her feet were noticeably flat. Another had a pronounced prognathous upper jaw. There were several defective upper lips. A few looked anemic. Some had unequal shoulders and one looked as though her thyroid gland might be enlarged.

One of the contest beauties was received with great acclaim by the audience and much enthusiasm by the artist jury. In the wheel chair contest she received a prize as well as in the evening gown contest. While the latter was being judged the contestants had to walk across the stage of a theatre, move about enough to exhibit their own good points in addition to those of the gown and then take a position at one side. This short walk was enough to condemn her—that is, by a jury of doctors. She had the swinging "hip" gait, so indicative of bowed legs. The artists did not see this until she appeared in a bathing suit. But in the bathing suit contest, the main event, she was not even selected as one of the last five. Her defect was obvious then.

The final award, too, provided ground for a doctor's analysis. For the main part, Miss Campbell, who has won first place in the contest for two years, is a very striking and beautiful girl. Her figure is nearly perfect, her coloring is exquisite, and the general effect of her face is agreeable. She has much grace of movement, a gait suggestive of the restiveness of a thoroughbred English race horse, and a characteristic sweetness of facial expression. Her chief defect is lack of physical facial beauty. Her eyes are too small and they are poorly set in the face, having an obliquity which extends from the outer angle upwards. The opposite slant, a very slight Oriental upturning of the eyes, a mark of beauty in some faces, is to be preferred to the perfectly straight or normal eyes. Her malar or cheek bones are too prominent and in the lower part of the face she has one very evident fault—that of having teeth which slope slightly inward. The most beautiful teeth are those which are set perfectly straight in the alveolar processes of the jaw, which have a wide arch, and which are of good size and whiteness. In those days of advanced dentistry it would be interesting to know how many of the famous Madonnas of the old masters could stand up under a rigid inspection of their teeth and gums.

This analysis of the judges' choice is not intended as anything but a doctor's opinion and no criticism of the jury or of Miss Campbell is meant.

Miss Kevins, who posed for some of the illustrations accompanying this article, was the judges' selection for second place and comes very near to being a perfect woman, from the doctor's point of view. She combines rare beauty of feature with an excellent figure. Her chief flaw is the length of her hand. In type she presents the very unusual combination of amber eyes, and hair the color of an alloy of copper and gold. She has an almost perfect oval face, a straight narrow nose, level eyes and a well-molded forehead. Parts of this analysis may sound like a rather severe indictment of the girls who participated in the Beauty Contest. They are not, however. Altogether these young ladies presented a very impressive combination. As a lot they were exceedingly good looking and there was hardly one of them of whom any community might not be proud.

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

A FRENCH agriculturist has discovered a new kind of earth that will make vegetables and flowers come up so fast that they get growing pains.

THIS stuff is so strong that it makes corn plants bloom twice a month.

ONE guy planted some asparagus and it came up so quickly that it hit him in the nose.

HE planted a lot of garlic one night and the next morning it was full grown. It grew so fast that it got all out of breath.

THIS same fellow sowed some cucumber seeds one evening and two minutes after he turned his back they were chasing him into the house.

THE corn was coming up so suddenly that he had to tip it to the ground.

IT got so bad that he was forced to sprinkle coffee on it to stunt its growth.

HE planted potatoes after dinner one night and they came up so early the next morning that their eyes weren't even open.

IT'S nice to be able to raise vegetables in such a hurry, but there's no sense in lifting them out.

THIS magic earth is a great thing for romantic fellows. A man can start calling on his girl in the evening, plant some rose seeds in a jar and raise them on his way down to her house.

THEY'll be in full bloom and ready to pick by the time he gets off the street car.

Copyright, 1928, by International Feature Service. YOU CAN BE "HAPPY" AS A FAILURE IF YOU HAVE INITIATIVE.

Sometimes you wonder if the struggle you are making to live well and do your duty as a liberal, loyal citizen is worth the effort.

You see other men apparently taking life easy, having little but will being contented and free from the cares and anxiety which you experience.

At times you are tempted to let down and become as these easy-going men.

Do not try it. You would not be happy, and you would kill your initiative; your energy would be weakened and you would lose your ambition to advance.

If you have no pride, no desire to get ahead and go ahead that is one thing.

But if you care a whit for the good opinion of others you will not be happy and contented living as a failure.

"Sure," replied the farmer, "but I would look funnier still going to town milking your bicycle."
